he tried to encourage me by telling me that highly intelligent people have migraines, and that we are perfectionists.

a habit of it, but if a medication is deemed too important to continue then we will purposefully treat.